DECEMBER 2025

A Weary World Rejoicing

I have always loved to sing Christmas carols. “O Come All Ye Faithful,” “Joy to the World,” and “Angels We Have Heard on High” have been a part of my Christmas celebrations for as long as I can remember. We are all familiar with singing “Silent Night” at Christmas Eve services while holding lit candles.

It wasn’t until I was older and in the ministry that I realized that many of our Christmas favorites tell the story of Christmas in a way that is not found in the Bible. And some have influenced the way we understand Christmas.

For example: “We Three Kings of Orient Are” tells us that the eastern visitors to Jesus’ birth were kings. Yet the Scripture tells us they were wisemen. It also says there were three of them, yet the Bible doesn’t mention a number. “The First Noel” mentions that shepherds (who heard the first Noel or good news) “looked up and saw a star—shining in the East beyond them far.” If you check the Gospel of Luke you will discover the shepherds didn’t see a star. As Matthew tells us, it was the three wisemen who saw the star. One last example would be “Away in the Manger.” It has a line that goes, “The cattle are lowing, the baby awakes—but little Lord Jesus, no crying He makes.” In the New Testament texts (Colossians 2:9 & Hebrews 2:17) we learn that Jesus was fully human. He was fully divine and fully human. If a baby is fully human, it is hard to believe that he/she wouldn’t cry.

Now I don’t want to be too hard on these Christmas Carols for they were not written with historical accuracy as their goal. They were written to move people toward faith upon hearing the story of Jesus’ birth. They do this very well.

One of my favorite lines from a Christmas hymn is from “O Holy Night.” After singing about the birth of the Savior, the hymn reminds us of the sin and error of our world. It goes on to say that with the Savior’s birth there was “A thrill of hope, the weary world rejoices.”

The world is weary. Error, evil, and sin no longer surprise or astonish us. New records seem to set each year for the way we humans can hurt each other. Evil, death, pain, and hurt seem to be constant in our world. But the birth of this Savior brings hope, for He is the Savior of the world. He came to deliver us from the errors of our ways and sins of human nature. The world is weary of wrong doing, it is weary of pain, it is weary of terrible stories in the news, it is weary of political debates and arguments. But the world rejoices with the thrill of hope the Savior brings. Let’s spend our Christmas rejoicing at the great hope that Jesus brings into this world with His birth. Christmas brings a thrill of hope that is worth our rejoicing.

Merry Christmas,

It seems like just yesterday we were celebrating Easter and here it is now, December. In this glorious season we thank you for your continued prayers and support. We could not do God's work without your help. We ask that you enjoy this glorious season and praise God for sending His Son to the world.

As we enter into this Advent season, may we try and remember what this season is about, Christ's coming birth giving us hope, love, joy and peace. May we never lose sight of these four powers that we have in Christ until He comes again.
